You can add audio to your TikTok videos from the built-in music library, using the voiceover feature or using an editing app. Voiceover lets you record your own narrations or music from other sources, such as your phone or stereo. Third-party applications for inserting audio clips include Quik, Adobe Rush, or InShot Video Editor. This article shows you how to add your own sounds to TikTok using voiceovers or an external editing app. The app has a built-in voiceover feature that allows you to speak through a voice on TikTok, whether you're recording video directly through the app or uploading videos from your device. The instructions in this article refer to the iOS and Android versions of the TikTok app. Use these steps to record audio, such as music played from your phone or your own narration, through the video. Open the TikTok app and select the plus sign icon in the middle of the bottom. Record the video through the app by selecting the red record button, or upload a video (or multiple videos) from your device by selecting Upload and Video(s). After you've finished recording or selecting videos from your device and are happy with the preview, choose Next. Select VoiceOver at the top right of the screen. Prepare the sound, and then tap or hold the record button to start recording the surrounding sound through the video. Select the Keep Original Sound check box in the lower-left corner as needed. Tap the recording to record to the entire video. Long pressing is ideal for starting and stopping recording if you don't want the surrounding audio to be recorded throughout the video. Move the white video marker along the timeline to capture above a specific part. Adjust the volume of your videos by tapping Sounds at the bottom, and then tapping Volume. Search and download a video editing app that lets you insert audio files from your library into your videos, such as Quik, Adobe Rush, or InShot VideoEditor. For these instructions, we will use Quik because it is easy to use and available on both iOS and Android platforms. Quik automatically detects the best parts of video recording and only keeps what you need (the maximum video length of TikTok is about a minute). To use the full video, you'll probably need to use a different platform. Open the Quik app and select the plus sign in the middle of the bottom. Select one or more videos, and then select Add in the upper-right corner. The video has a default sound according to the theme. Change it by selecting the music note icon on the bottom menu. Scroll horizontally between music clips until you see My Music, and then tap music library button. You must give the app permission to access the music library. Select a song to preview, and then select Next to it for your app. The app plays the sound through the video preview. In order to be special changes to audio playback on the video, such as a specific part of a track, should use an app that offers more advanced features. If you're happy with the video, you can save it to your device by clicking the blue save button in the lower-right corner, and then clicking Photo Gallery. Open the TikTok app, select the plus sign icon in the middle of the bottom, and choose Upload to upload the audio video. Thank you for let us know! Tell me why. It's been a minute since TikTok collapsed in the global social media party in 2018. And a lot has happened. For example, the Washington Post hired a TikTok application expert. Buzzfeed recruits teenagers to cover on TikTok. According to The Verge, Justin Bieber is desperate for Yummy to spread like a virus on TikTs. The in-and-out celebrities, including everyone from Snoop Dogg to Reese Witherspoon, opened accounts. And the ads ended up on the platform, along with a component to buy. Teenagers gaga on TikTok. And advertising locks wide open, brands too. Chipotle, Nike, Skittles, Fenty Beauty, Pepsi and Universal Pictures are among the companies already seduced by TikTok's warpspeed success. Lil Nas X country tap jam Old Town Road is the best example of this. While lassoing about 67 million plays for TikTok, the only one teteted #1 on the Billboard Hot 100, where it remained in record-setting 17 weeks. Like all other social networks, TikTok has a range of influencers and meme machines that use money from views, likes, comments, shares and virtual coins to make money. There are more than 35 TikTok stars who count their followers in tens of millions – most of them non-mainstream celebrities. Today I used the @NFL TikTok to @charlidamelio to make some @Chiefs dance moves and make them a real TikTok dance. I didn't think he'd notice. BUT HE DID IT. And it turned out super cool. And it has a 1.4m view hours. So basically, I'm never going to surpass this moment. Moment. - A.S. Curry (@AJ_Curry) January 13, 2020 But the machine focuses on TikTok's immediate success with the algorithm, providing artificial intelligence to provide personalized recommendations to viewers. When you open the app, the videofeed plays instantly to viewers. Users can follow their favorite creators, but you don't need the feed to automatically fill up with cured clips. As Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg did with a leaked voice: I think of TikTok as if it were the discovery of stories, and that was the whole app. TikTok puts content experience at the heart of the user experience – that's what makes videos explode so quickly. A brief history of TikTok in China, TikTok is known as Douyin. The precursor to the TikTok app, Douyin, was launched by ByteDance, the world's most valuable startup in 2016. TikTok officially made their overseas debut in 2018 when they merged with Musical.ly. TikTok's success did not come without controversy. The app was briefly banned by lawmakers in India last year, who mentioned cultural degradation and explicit content. In the United States, the Federal Trade Commission fined $5.7 million for violating the Children's Privacy Act. Security concerns have led the U.S. government to launch a national security review of the app, while censorship allegations have drawn criticism from lawmakers and competitors. TikTok will have a new competition in 2020. Byte, a new TikTok rival to Vine's co-founder, danced at the top of Apple's app store on January 24. And Google just popped into the short-form video game Tangi. In Asia, Tencent-backed KuaiShou is gaining popularity, while its sister app Kwai is popular in Brazil. And of course, Facebook and Instagram are down to close on TikTok this year. How does TikTok work? Teens realized TikTok out a long time ago. But I still manage to get confused with many millennials and Baby Boomers. Here's the lowdown on how the TikTok app works.
